

An Exclusive Invitation

You are invited to join an exclusive training – taught by <name> personally! We are only extending this invitation to a select group of people, and your past history with <ABC> Yoga suggests you may qualify.

Picture this: you're teaching a yoga class. You move around the room with confidence, giving each student personal attention and guidance. One student has a shoulder injury... another can barely walk due to hip pain... and you have a first-timer who came in with whiplash from a recent auto accident.

You give these three students specific poses to help each one heal his own particular injury. Across the room, another student goes up into headstand unassisted – for the first time ever. She's all smiles and excitement.

As the students leave, they all thank you and say what a great class it was. That they feel fantastic. They'll definitely be back next week.

You smile. It's all in a day's work.

If you've never taught yoga before, you can't imagine how rewarding it can be. There's nothing that quite matches the good feeling of helping another human being live a happy, healthy, pain-free life.

The Foundation Level course in the College of <ABC> Yoga – specifically taught by <name> – is the first step to making that dream a reality.

The Best Teacher Training You'll Ever Find – Period.

If you want to be the best, you need to learn from the best.

And there's no better teacher trainer than <name>.

He's been called the "teacher of teachers," and he has trained most of the top teachers in the yoga world today. You can't go to a big yoga conference anywhere in the world without seeing at least a few of the excellent teachers <name> has trained and influenced.

<name> and his wife <name> founded the College of <ABC> Yoga with one purpose: to create the best-trained yoga teachers anywhere. Teachers with integrity... a detailed knowledge of asana and the mechanics of the human body... and a deep desire to always grow, learn and improve themselves.

No doubt about it. If you want to teach yoga, you need to learn from <name>.

The Best Way To Learn

They say the best way to learn something is to teach it.

Well, yes – and no.

If you don't know how to teach... if you get nervous speaking in front of groups... if you get stuck racking your brain thinking of what to say...

... then teaching yoga won't be a rewarding experience at all!

But when you've been taught the techniques of teaching, how to speak to groups of students, and what to say – and not say – to a class, then teaching yoga can be one of the most enjoyable and satisfying things you ever do.

Teacher training is not about learning to do a bunch of advanced poses. It's about inspiring students... keeping them safe... knowing when to teach certain poses and when not to.

It's about putting the student first.

No other teacher training program brings together all the aspects of yoga. In the Foundation Level course, you will discover...

- the detail and elegance of the physical practice of asana
- the natural energetics of the body, mind and spirit
- ancient yogic philosophy – still relevant in our modern world!
- the surprising link between yoga and nutrition
- ways to create a lifestyle that supports your practice and your growth.

This aspect of the training alone will put you in the top 5% of yoga teachers in the world.

Very few teachers out there understand all these facets of yoga.

But it's what students are craving.

Give The People What They Want

Students want to heal... want to feel good in their physical bodies... feel calm and peaceful at all times. With this training, you can give them these things – and a lot more.

When your students get what they crave, they come back to your classes again and again. Your classes will be full because your students know they're getting enormous benefit by coming. And you'll have the personal satisfaction of helping people lead happier, healthier lives.

The month-long format helps you eliminate distractions and lets you focus 100% on the training. And the bonds you form with your classmates will be some of the deepest and closest friendships you ever have.

If you attend one of <name>'s trainings around the world, there may be 100 or 200 people in the room, and the intensive only lasts a weekend or at most a week. There's little or no one-on-one contact, and only a limited chance to ask questions.

In the Foundation Level course, you'll enjoy personal attention from <name>, in a smaller, intimate-sized group setting. You'll have the freedom to ask him any question you want about yoga, and really work closely with him to learn the secrets of teaching yoga at a very high level.

But there's another – deeper – benefit.

Learn From The Best

By hearing and observing <name> teach, you'll subconsciously pick up many of his techniques for presentation and for inspiring his students. Without even being aware of it, you'll start to emulate many of the traits that have made <name> such a successful yoga teacher for 30 years.

You've heard the phrase "monkey see, monkey do"? That's exactly what I'm talking about.

Observing a master at his craft is the fastest way to become a master yourself.

Upon completion of the course, you'll be eligible to register with Yoga Alliance at the 200-hour level. This automatically sends the message to prospective students – and studios – that you know your stuff. That you're well-trained. You're dedicated.

That you're one of the best teachers available.

Even better, <ABC> Yoga is a safety-oriented style of yoga. This means you'll be able to keep your students safe in class, no matter what health issues they come in with.

Safe students means more repeat students... larger classes... and makes you an invaluable asset to any yoga studio you work with.

Safety goes far beyond knowing the actions and anatomy for each pose. You'll discover guidelines for sequencing a class to ensure students leave feeling great. <name> will share with you which poses to avoid when students come to class injured.

And he will reveal the way to know when a student is ready – safely – to go deeper into a pose.
